Title - Prognosis: The Interface Between Public Health and Industrial Poultry Production

F. William Pierson, MS, DVM, PhD, Dip ACPV
Professor Emeritus, Biosecurity and Infection Control
Clinical Specialist, Poultry Health
Department of Population Health Sciences
Virginia Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine
Virginia Tech
Blacksburg, Virginia 24060
USA

Short Introductory Biography

Dr. Pierson received his BS in Animal Science from the University of Delaware in 1978, MS from Purdue University in Poultry Physiology in 1980, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine from Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine in 1984, and PhD from Virginia Tech in Poultry Medicine in 1993. He is a diplomate of the American College of Poultry Veterinarians and a career member of the American Association of Avian Pathologists. Formerly Director of the Veterinary Teaching Hospital at Virginia Tech and Acting Department Head of the Department of Biomedical Sciences and Pathobiology, he entered semi-retirement in 2018 after 27 years of service. He is now an Emeritus Professor of Biosecurity and Infection Control as well as Clinical Specialist in Poultry Health with the Department of Population Health Sciences at Virginia Tech. He resides with his wife in Durham, North Carolina.